BOATING MATTERS.

The Baces Saturday-East Washington Wins-Random Notes.
The much talked of boat race between Paine and White, of Georgetown, and Lewis and Mansfield, of East Washington, came off on Saturday even-ing. As was announced in Saturday's hercalican, a tub race preceded the p incipal event, with three entries, Charles Toney, James Rayle, and Frank Thompson. Abill the participants started, with Toney in the lead, which he maintained throughout the race, winning in seven minutes. Hayle secured.

with Toney in the lead, which he maintained throughout the race, winning in seven minutes. Hayle second.

At 550 Referre Gadsby called the double-cared race for working boats, and the men responded, coming to the line in good time. Although it was raining, the men started promptly at 6 o'clock, Mansaleid and Lewis having the best of the start, which they retained for a short time only, when Paine and White drew even with them, and from this time until the failsh the race was even. The two boats turned the stake almost simultaneously. The run down the homestretch was materially the same as the run up, except when about fifty yards from the finish Lewis and Mausfield spuried and won by half a length, two seconds in advance of their opponents. Time, 17:18. A large congourse of people witnessed the race from the bridge and numerous craft on the river. The referred, judges, and members of the press followed the race in a steam-launch, through the kindness of Mr. Jesh Evans. RANDOM NOTES.

The Columbias will not go into active training for the Potomac regata until September 10, when Ellis Ward, their trainer, will arrive.

green were swept caressingly against the sides of the modest structure, Pansy Perkins was standing, and as Entelbert Pettinglil spoke the words with which this chapter opens her face lighted up with a radiant 2x4 smile that was beautiful in its sad expanse of territory.

"Come to me, Pansy," he said.

It was Ethelbert's videe, tender, gentle, that spoke, yet with something in its tones that made the girl pause in her excited, feverish walk up and down, and she pressed her hands to her throbling temples, looking at him with large, bright, pathetic eyes. But he stretched out his hand and she came to him. He passed his arm around her waist and held her to his breast a moment in silence. Presently Pansy spoke. "It is very hot, is it not, daring," she said.
"Yes," replied Ethelbert, "and it is getting late, and we should be going home "--but as he spoke the girl looked up at him with those handsome, dark eyes that had witched so many men.
"Do you love me?" she said.
"Passionately, my angel," was the reply, in tremulous tones.
"And will you buy me some ice-cream?" she continued.

"And will you buy me some ice-cream?" she continued.

Ethelbert felt his heart throbbing against his suspender, and for an instant he could not reply. But the momentary against on was seen over, and he spoke out in clear, mellow tones, "I will do it with pleasure," he said:

"In peachy cheek of the girl was laid close to his now, and the velvety lips kis-ed him tenderly back of the left ear. And then, turning her head slightly, lansy whispered to herself: "I have not lost my grip."—From "Over the Brink," by Murat Hutstead.
